According to attorney in case

City action could cause lawsuit 'holocaust'

PLEASANTON - The city council's rejection of a settlement in the Schlies sewer law suit could bring the destruction of the 1972 sewer agreement and a resulting holocaust of developer lawsuits.

That was the judgment yesterday of Schlies' attorney, Alan Grossman, who said he was puz-zled as to why the city council rejected his proposed settlement in

Grossman said the judge in the case, Robert Bostick, has directed a settlement in the suit. Grossman wants 11 sewer connections for Schlies and feels the city could accommodate Schlies at the Sunol sewage treatment plant.

But the city council voted 4-0 (Mayor Ed Kinney absent) last week to deny Grossman's proposed settlement. City Attorney Ken Scheidig was not available yester-day to comment on why the council rejected the proposed settlement.

Scheidig has told Grossman that giving Schlies his 11 sewer connection will open the city to a lawsuit from the owner of owners of property across from the Sunol plant, said Grossman. Property owners near the Sunol plant would argue that as long as the city is giving connections to someone out on Santa Rita Road, the city also should give them to properties much closer to the sewer plant.

But the Schlies case is unique and it doesn't appear the city would risk "questionable future litigation" by settling with Schlies for the 11 controversial connections, said Grossman. For one thing, no other property a letter from Mayor Ed Kinney mistakenly informing them that they are in the Sunol treatment plant area and no other developer built an $8,000 sewer lateral line because of that letter, said Grossman.

If the city doesn't settle the Schlies case, there is a possibility Judge Bostick may void the 1972 sewer agreement, said Grossman.

Bostick has the judge who presided over signing of the 1972 agreement, but lately he has shown signs of dissatisfaction with the way it has been carried out, said Grossman.

"The judge has seen 200 sewer connections gone begging in the VCSD plant while Pleasanton fights over 11 connections in the Sunol plant," said Grossman. "I think the judge feels the agree-ment was workable in 1972, but now he is wondering what has happened. Building in Dublin has slowed, but Pleasanton has the desire to build."

The Schlies suit arose from poor planning in Pleasanton, said

Grossman. Originally the general plan showed office complexes along Bernal Avenue, but city councils weakened and granted office zoning along Santa Rita Road, far away from the Sunol sewage treatment plant, said Grossman.

"It's not clear to me why the city doesn't settle. They are gambling on court costs and attorney's fees. There were only two other parties in the same situtation on holding tanks when the 1972 agreement happen was signed. That means the city might have to come up with four more sewer connections for those properties. But if they don't settle it, that could mean the end of the 1972 sewer agreement," said Grossman.

An end to the 1972 agreement would renew the five or six lawsuits which were settled by that agreement, he added. The city is also exposing itself to $900 a month in damages from Schlies because of holding tank fees he has had to pay since April, 1975, the date he contends he should have received a sewer connection from the city.

Other properties in the vicinity were on holding tanks at the same time or later than Schlies and they received sewer connections in April, 1975, said Grossman.

City wins Long suit judgment

PLEASANTON — The city was victorious in its law suit against Longview subdivision developer Howard Long, Assistant City Attorney Harvey Levine announced yesterday.

Alameda County Superi-or Court Judge John Sparrow ruled denial of a writ nf mandate which Long's attorney, Gil Maines, sought against the city.

The dispute involves the city's rejection of a proposed road to serve Longview. Attorney Maines contended that the city deny the road because it is a private road. The attorney also contended that inclusion of the road on a tentative map amounted to an implied request for a variance or modification of the subdivision.

The lawsuit was responsible for the longest planning commission meeting on record, approximately seven and a half hours, because Judge Sparrow had directed the planning commission to hear all of the relevant testimony in the case.

Sewage equals power here

People who believe that whoever controls water and sewage controls growth in the valley will be watching Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District in 1976.

The zone was tagged in December as lead agency for water management planning in the Alameda Creek watershed above Niles In a September resolution, the zone declared its intention to implement its overall water management plan by contracting with others or 'by building and operating wastewater collection systems, treatment works and disposal facilities to serve the area. The zone explained this was its right, given its legal responsibility to "provide an overall water supply of good quality water within its some areas by saying one area would be better for a sewer than another," said Harris.

Harris said the zone could refuse to provide water services to a county-approved project if it could be shown that the growth would degrade the underground basin. "There is an unanswered question," Harris said. "If a developer came into the valley and wanted to build a 20,000-person community, for example, and if the developer could provide the financing for a filtration plant, could the county make us build the plant? I don't

Brandes' charges:

McLain's barbs 'late'

PLEASANTON — Councilman Roger McLain's criticism of developers' lawsuits against the city is coming a little late, according to city council candidate Frank Brandes

McLain was on the planning commission since 1972 and on the city council for the past nine months, but there is no record McLain ever tried to ameliorate the situation with developers' law suits, said Brandes.

In fact there is some evidence that McLain poured gasoline on the fire, along with other planning commissioners and city council members, Brandes told The Times yesterday.

During his tenure on the planning commission, McLain voted approval of various zonings and tract maps instead of trying to discourage further development in light of diminished sewage treatment capacity, said Brandes.

"All this campaign rhetoric is great, Times photo by Bill Cauble except that someone with positions in city government has not shown by any of his actions that he is going to approach the problem to try to resolve it, either by preventing further legal liability on the part of the city or by making any rational attempt to work in cooperation with the developers," said Brandes.

> McLain never before, to my knowledge, came out publicly with any statements such as those he made in The Times Dec. 24," said Brandes.

'As recently as a few months ago, when Morrison Homes came in to ask a variance from the city, McLain did not use the opportunity to publicly make a statement as to the action of these developers," said Brandes. The council voted unanimously to deny the Morrison variance request and two weeks later Morrison served the city with a lawsuit over

"I pass all this off as campaign rhetoric by a man who had the opportunity to resolve these problems and waits until election time to raise these issues," said Brandes.

Brandes also commented on McLain's call for ad-hoc citizen advisory committees to get more citizens involved with government. He questioned why McLain didn't call for them when the redevelopment issue was first being discussed in McLain's remarks reported in the Dec. 24 issue of The Times were part of his election filing statement. In it he said that "it is time we ask the homebuilders association to examine the actions of some of our local developers who have been responsible for exorbitant legal expenditures by the city when we have to defend ourselves in court because of their sewer problems over which we have not no control.'

McLain said the developers' actions are "morally and ethically wrong" and the developers were "biting the hand that feeds them" by filing the suits over sewer connections.

Chiropractic 'preventive' measure for good health

Chiropractic was once very much frowned upon and thought of as "just a bunch of quacks" working on a person's body. "There will always be a certain percentage of those 'quacks' out there," said Dr. Thomas Forest in Places to a Spring Street in Places to a Spring S tor on Spring Street in Pleasanton.

However, Dr. Forest feels this type of person cannot be limited to the chiropractic business only, it exists in many fields. "A patient must be careful in selecting a chiropractor just as he yould any other medical assistance," he said.

According to Dr. Forest, chiropractic is a "system of the practice of adjusting the joints, especially of the spine, by hand for the curing of diseases." Dr. Forest explained how the body is a wonderful organism which does its own healing. "The body was not created to be sick," Forest stated. "With proper posture and care of the body, it would remain in good health just about all the time." He went on to explain that chiropractic is a "preventive" measure for good health, not a healing process although if a disease has been existing in the body, there has been proof that chiropractic treatments have remedied the illness.

"Giving massages and applying heat, may make the person feel good," he said, but it does not cure the problem nor does taking drugs solve the problem. It gives a temporary relief from pain or assists the body to overcome the illness.'

Chiropractic comes from nature, according to Forest. Our bodies had to adapt to the environment to which it became exposed. The body produces symptoms to alert a person something is wrong within the body. These symptoms could be a headache, lower backache, pains in the legs, neck pains and many other symptoms. With proper treatment, which could mean an adjustment to the atlas or axis, the body will heal itself. according to Dr. Forest. Only the atlas and axis of the body are adjusted which lets the spine be free and

"I generally advise my patients that there is the possibility they will feel a lot worse before they feel better," said the young chiropractor. "This is mainly due to the fact that the body has been out of adjustment and when properly set, it is a strain and could create pain to the individual until the body re-adjusts itself to the correct posture.

A patient's first visit to Dr. Forest will consist of the doctor fully explaining his treatments and lying the patient flat on his back to check the legs. Sometimes a difference of one quarter of an inch in the length of one leg over the other can be diagnosed by a trained eye. This indicates the person's body is out of alinement.

Dr. Forest also uses an electronic machine, "Shermoscribe." A hand operated device is run down the back of the neck and spine. The machine as well as the instrument on the back will record the heat of the body.

When abnormal heat is indicated by the machine this means a vertebra in the spine is misaligned and putting stress on the nerves. This cuts off the proper energy supply to certain parts of the body which will make the body more susceptible

The body should have an even balance of heat. If a vertebra is out of line in a given area, the machine will record this by showing a change in body heat. A good reading on a person is a straight line. A jagged line indicates where in the spine the adjustment is needed and approximately how badly out of alinement it is.

A reading of a patient is taken before an adjustment is made and then again after the adjustment to see if the correction was accomplished. It may take more than one adjustment to correct the problem. The electronic graph markings help in

Not always does the patient have to disrobe to have treatment. According to Dr. Forest, it depends upon each patient's problem. If Forest feels an X-ray is required, it is then necessary for the patient to put on a provided gown so there is no interference with the X-rays. The X-rays are taken by Dr. Forest on his premises.

Depending upon the extent of the treatment, a patient may be reuquired to lie down for an hour in room where facilities are provided before being dismissed to go home. A specially provided pillow under the neck gives the patient's body a chance to adjust to the correction made on the spine.

Chiropractic is becoming more and more popular with the public. This, according to Dr. Forest, is due to the fact that patients who were relieved from pain by chiropractic treatments are referring other friends who have similar problems.

"To a great degree people were coming to us as the last resort," — people who tried everything and were told they had to live with their problem,' related the doctor. "They are desperate," he continued "After treatment, these individuals generally find relief from pain and tell others about it.

"Many people ask why we do not perform surgery," Forest remarked. "This is because it is written in the creed of the chiropractor that he will not perform surgery. This does not mean," he said, "that should we get a patient who we feel might need surger a qualified doctor."

An extensive research has been and continues to be under way by regular medical doctors, on the results obtained from chropractic treatments. It has been proven, the doctor said, that chiropractic treatments have helped heal some diseases.

Dr. Forest is from Palmer School of Chiropractic, the original chiropractic school, according to Dr. Forest, which continues to grow rapidly. This school believes in using nothing on the body but hands and X-rays if necessary. No heat, water or light is used at any time.

Chiropractic is not something new Dr Forest studied. He is a child of the chiropractic world. His father was a chiropractor, and he has an uncle and brothers practicing or studying chiropractics.

His lovely, young wife, Chris, will assist the doctor as receptionist in the newly redecorated offices. Keeping with the theme chiropractic practice comes from nature, the rooms are decorated with gay, bright earth colors and lots of large, beautiful plants.

New year shootup

Livermore Police Sargeant Larry Morrison inspects a bullet hole in one window of the police station made by a slug fired early New Year's Day. The police station was one of nine targets fired upon in a two-hour period, including city hall, Livermore High School, Pacific Gas and Electric, Groth Brothers Oldsmobile, Kinney Shoes, Natalie's Delicatessen, Firestone, and a car parked on Palomino Road. Although no one was injured, shooting into an occupied building is a felony, as is vandalism in which more than $1,000 damage is incurred, police are searching for witnesses to the shootings.

Open house scheduled at San Ramon center

SAN RAMON — An open house will be held Thursday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the new Service Center for the San Ramon Valley Unified School District.

Located at 3280 East Crow Canyon Road, the center houses all the support services of the district, with the exception of the food services offices, which remain on South Hartz Avenue in Dan-

Support services include maintenance, operations, transportation, the instructional materials center, and warehousing, all of which implement the instructional program of the district.

Opening of the center brings these services together under one roof for the first time in the 10-year history of the district since unification.

The center is housed in a warehouse facility formerly owned by Aerojet and is situated on a four-acre site. There are 36,000 square feet of space in the main building and 14,000 additional square feet in other buildings on the site. Total cost of the land, building and paving was $850,000.

Cost of the building and remodeling, alone, was $12-$13 per square foot (versus current building costs of $32 a square foot), making it not only a superb facility for efficient operation of the support services, but a bargain as well.

Parking areas for the district's fleet of 27 transit and five suburban school buses, driver training cars. maintenance and operations vehicles; repair and maintenance facilities for buses, cars, trucks and grounds-keeping equipment; separate shops for carpentry, glass replacement, key making, welding, etc. are included on the site, along with offices for the various departments and a lounge area for the bus drivers when they are between runs.

The public is cordially invited to inspect this newest addition to the district's facilities.

Candidates symposium proposed

LIVERMORE — The city attorney intends to organize a symposium to answer city council candidates' general questions on Proposition Nine and help interpret the city's election codes.

The idea was proposed by the city attorney, Bob Logan, and received an enthusiastic reception by the council.

Logan explained he has been answering candidates' questions but is uneasy because each candidate spends a different amount of time with him. He added that as a public servant, he feels inclined to help each candidate.

The symposium also may be attended by the assistant city attorney and the city clerk. No date has been set yet.

Summer school profitable

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Unified School District's summer school was a profitable item again in 1975, bringing in a $188,000 profit.

According to a report by summer school principal Monty Reitz, the school's income was $462,927 while expenses were $274,887.

The distric enrolled 7,532 students at 12 locations. The state paid Livermore on a per-student basis. Meanwhile, students were required to pay for inci-dental supplies used in their classrooms but did not pay any fee for attending summer school. Classes started out crowded in many cases, although enrollment dropped off slightly as the summer went on. There were an average of 33.3 children per developmental physical education class, for example; 30 in kindergartens; 32.6 in pre-kindergartens; 58 in field ecology and 33.3 in reading.

The high schools had 41 in the beginning algebra class, 62.5 in each of two math learning centers and 32.8 in driver education. Meanwhile, a photography workshop attracted only 15 and a wildlife manage-ment class, 16.

Record wives

Have any 45 rmp records you've finally gotten tired of but still are playable? Alameda County Deputy Sheriffs' Wives Club members Karen Whitehead and Rhinda Stupey know of a place that can use them — the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch. Their club bought and donated a jute box to the youth ranch which will be placed in the Recreation Room when completed. Records may be given to Ruth Shattuck, 455-1179, at the youth ranch which is now located at the old Del Valle Sanitarium.

The root of all rebounds

Mike Zampa

Just when President Ford and his economic soothsayers tell us the nation has pulled out of its monetary tailspin (New York City not withstanding) the sporting world has suddenly taken a dive.

Pro franchises go bankrupt at an alarming rate. College athletic directors beg in the streets and even in high school they're beginning to feel the Costs escalate. Revenues diminish. Girls want to play. Program expansion is unheard of any more. Maintaining the status quo is nearly impossible. The urgency to profit from sports even at the prep level becomes glaringly apparent.

Are interscholastic in danger of elimination? Perhaps not. But distressing signs, even in our own neighborhood, indicate change in the offing. Interest in high school athletics is waning, among fans and players. The "Super Bowl - Superstar" syndrome has dumped a load of increased pressure on young competitors. And the financial crisis is closing in on administrators.

Last weekend's announcement that Amador Valley High School's basketball classic is being dropped was the latest warning that something is Basketball coach Skip Mohatt, tournament di-rector, made the revelation unilaterally. He had no doubt, however, that he'd be backed by the school administration. The Classic has been a proud part of Amador tradition for 14 years.

Practically speaking, however, it was a loser. The school rang up a deficit of nearly $1,000 for this year's Classic. Crowds were non-existent. Historically the tournament has failed as a drawing card, save for those rare occasions when the host school appeared in the championship.

It was either cancel the tournament, or perpetuate a budget sapper. In the latter instance, add-ed pressure would be dropped on the young basketball players, whose success would dictate the take at the gate.

Facing the grim realities, Mohatt opted to jettison his own tournament. Amador's coach said he'll replace the Classic with a like number of home practice games. In that manner, Mohatt said, he can assure rigid competition for his team. More importantly, if good teams are lured to Pleasanton, more money-paying fans will be drawn to the Amador gym.

There was a time when the people who directed young athletes wouldn't be so blatant about the profit motive. But Mohatt and his cohorts throughout high school sports are faced with a dilemma. They've got to emphasize revenue producing sports like football and basketball at the expense of sports that can't pay the freight.

Those football playoffs that concluded late in November are a byproduct of the new emphasis. Many people who voted for the post-season championship foresaw the opportunity for extra cash. Opponents feared the over-blown importance of big-money games involving teenagers. In Los Angeles, however, they've been playing for years with a $50,000 championship pot at stake. The final tally was in favor of playoffs, with perhaps the hope that Northern California could someday emmulate the South.

If high school athletics are being threatened, it isn't solely from revenue loss, however, or the fact that players are becoming teenage mercenar-

There are indications that students have lost interest in after school sports. High school football rosters dropped drastically in numbers this past season. The EBAL voted down a proposal for an extra game next year, fearing that understaffed teams couldn't handle the load.

Dublin High School was forced to cancel a dream wrestling trip to Honolulu during the Christmas break, because most of its veteran wrestlers quit the team. Non-playing students don't support school sports as they once did, and in fact often question classmates who do participate. With the shift to elective P.E., and the coinciding emphasis on individual or so-called lifetime sports like golf and tennis, interest in team games may further diminish. The only increase in participation is among the girls, and while that should make P.E. directors happy, it doesn't. Nobody can afford to expand girls programs without cutting back existing ones. But the ladies want their chance, and federal law insists they will have it.

The EBAL's cutback of freshman sports last year was an indication of what's in store — fewer teams, with emphasis on the ones that pay off. It was move no one hailed. One parents' group has initiated a drive to restore freshmen sports. The parents charge that school officials performed their budget cuts on the wrong victim. But their argument doesn't alter the stark reality that there isn't enough money to go around.

If inflation and decreased revenue continue to tromp hand-in-hand over high school athletics, and the trend toward community and student interest holds, restructuring may be in order. De-emphasis of high school athletics could be the outcome. Some have suggested a return to strictly intramural sports in school already.

It seems unlikely that the majority of administrators, coaches parents and students would stand for it. But it's certain they'll have to accept less than they get now.

Coaching staffs will be pared down. Schedules will be limited to a narrow radius. Equipment will be stretched further.

A lot of belts will be tightened to keep high school athletics from joining the World Football League on the scrap heap.

EBAL girls open today

The EBAL girls basketball season tips off tonight and coaches are predicting a tough season for everyone. California and Foothill High Schools will be challenging the more established teams after advancing through the junior varsity level.

In action tonight, Dublin plays at Cal, Livermore is at Amador Valley, Granada entertains San Ramon, and Foothill travels to Monte Vista. Junior varsity games begin at 6 p.m. Varsity contests are at 7:30.

Amador, last year's co-champion, will be a strong team with three returning starters. Carmen Macon, Debbie Oxsen and Cheryl Withoft will be back on the court along with Jamie Watson and talented freshmen Janie Kuhns.

The Dons had only one pre-season game; against Notre Dame of Sacramento. The quick Amador team won 53-31, leading the whole way.

Streaking Dons host 'Pokes

It is a time to talk about records at Amador Valley High. The Dons play perrenial champion Livermore in soccer this afternoon at home, hoping to extend a record and enhance their chances for a couple of more.

Amador leads the EBAL with a 6-0 mark as the season reaches the halfway point. Counting practice matches, the Dons have won eight straight this year, eclipsing the old school mark for consecutive victories. That streak, six games, was run off two years ago. But Amador has compiled a bleak career mark in meetings with Livermore, and will be hard-pressed to turn things around today.

The Cowboys boast a 7-2-5 lifetime record against Amador. They have also won every EBAL championship except one they shared with the Dons two years ago.

They are 4-1-1 this season, and within easy distance of first place. With threats like Ken Watts and Rich Palmer you'd expect them to Geib, does. But he says his team is so young. and so totally unfamiliar with the rivalry between these teams, that they won't be negatively influenced heading into the match. "We're unbelieveably young," Geib said yesterday. "Our freshmen and sophomores don't know what tradition is. They don't know what Livermore has done to us in the past, they just know this is a big game." Amador will start an infant backfield with freshman Steve Englebrick and sophomore Len Baine at fullbacks. The goal keeper will be John Castillo, another sophomore.

The Amador kids have stunned opponents so far by playing over their heads, according to Geib. With a two-week Christmas layoff to study the situation, Livermore won't take the Dons lightly.

"They have really super players," Geib says of the Cowboys "We've never looked at it like they hold a jinx over us. How do you say that division last weekend in be tough Amador's coach, Mike when they finish first every yearp They just have the good players."

The Dons have them too, even if they are youngstefs. But the key to Amador's season, according to Geib, has been the leadership provided by seniors Pete John and Dave Gordon, and junior Brad Boldrini. "The seniors remember that we had our worst year ever last season," Geib said. "And now they have the longest winning streak ever. It comes down to one thing - team leadership and team spirit. We're still in shock from the season we had last year, and we're kind of surprised by what we've done this Geib said Castillo will play the entire game in goal this afternoon, even though senior Dave Schneider has returned from a broken hand. Schneider must win back his goalie's job, Geib said.

The Dons may play without their offensive spark, striker Casey Clark, who missed practice yesterday with flu If he's not ready, Pat Cohan will be moved inside. Cohan is another sophomore.

In other action today, Dublin plays at California, San Ramon travels to Rranada and Foothill faces Monte Vista in Danville.

Pacific Telephonés new rates: how you could be affected.

On December 30, 1975, the California Public Utilities Commission approved several changes in the way Pacific Telephone charges for some of its services. The changes became effective Monday, January 5.

Monthly rates for basic exchange service for both residence and business customers will not change. But the revised rates for other services will provide a portion of additional revenues necessary to help meet our higher costs resulting from inflation, increased wages of employees, higher purchasing costs of equipment, and continuing maintenance of the communications system. Primarily, rate changes will apply to service connections and installations, to long distance calls made within California, and on some business communications equipment.

As an example, we previously charged a flat $24 for a residence telephone installation. Under the new rates, charges will depend on the complexity of the work done by the installer and other company employees. Some customers may pay less, others

Intrastate long distance rates have been revised, too. In the past, you paid a minimum fixed charge for the first three minutes of any long distance call in California-even if you talked for only a minute or two. Now we are introducing a one-minute rate for all directly dialed calls in the State. So you will no longer have to pay for time you don't use. To give you a better understanding of these and other charges, here is a more detailed explanation:

Long Distance

The most important change in long distance billing is that all directly dialed calls within the State of California will now be timed in one minute increments (instead of the old "first three minutes, and every minute thereafter" method of timing). So, the shorter the duration of the call, the less the charge. This is the way interstate calls have been charged since March of 1975. This change applies only to directly dialed calls. Operator-assisted calls continue to have the three-minute initial period at a higher rate and person-to-person calls also will have an initial three-minute period at a higher rate.

Pacific Telephone also has extended its special Night Rate (that's the lowest rate of all) so that it's now in effect all day Saturday. If you dial directly, you can take advantage of our Night Rate anytime between 11 p.m. Friday and 5 p.m. on Sunday. The new calling period coincides with interstate calling periods.

In Los Angeles and the San Francisco-East Bay metropolitan areas, we have cancelled all "six message unit" routes (check the front of your phone book to see which calls within your area are charged 6 message units). Calls which were previously billed as six message units will now be considered long distance calls. However, with the new one-minute rate in effect, it could mean a savings if you keep your calls to one or two minutes.

The rates for long distance calls made from a pay telephone, and paid for at that phone (as opposed to calls charged to another phone number or to a credit card) will be increased. Charges will be slightly higher than for three minutes of conversation on directly dialed calls or calls over 16 miles, but lower than an operator-assisted call. Actual charges will be given at the time a call is placed.

Installation

Telephone installation service charges will be broken down to include only those items ordered by a customer. As previously mentioned, we formerly charged a flat fee of $24 for installation of service to a residence, whether one or more phones were installed. Under the new rates, charges will depend on the complexity of work done. These "pay for what you order" charges will apply to both single residence and single business phones. Included are charges for the paperwork necessary to record and process an order for service, central office work, and jobs performed at the customer's home or business to provide telephone service. Because the installation needs of individual customers vary so greatly, a Service Representative will explain the charges at the time an order for service is placed.

PBX Equipment

There has been a restructuring of rates which will apply to many PBX services. Services affected are: Key Station Dial (755), Hotel Dial Pack (761A or B), Modular Dial (756 only), and Dial Series (701, 711, 740, 757, and 800A). Since there are so many different kinds of PBX equipment, an Account Representative will be visiting each PBX customer to assess and explain any financial impact these changes might make before a change in billing becomes

Other Charges

Installation rates for intrastate WATS (Wide Area Telephone Service) lines, which have not been changed since 1966, will increase to $50 per line. There will be no change in the monthly service charge.

The residential monthly rate charge for TouchTone service changes to $1.45 per month for one phone and 25¢ for each additional TouchTone set. The old rate was $1.60 a month for one or more phones. A onetime charge for TouchTone service will be $7.50 for the first phone and $2.50 for each additional TouchTone instrument. These one-time charges for TouchTone service will be the same for businesses, but the monthly rate will be $1.95 for the first instrument and 25¢ for each TouchTone extension. Once a customer has paid the one-time charge for TouchTone service, it never has to be paid again anywhere in the Bell System.

There will be charges for other functions we perform, such as making a number change, placing a phone on "vacation" rate, or for suspending service at a customer's request. There also will be a charge to the customer who takes over service from an existing subscriber without interruption.

Replacement of a standard telephone set with one of our Design Line instruments will carry a special charge of $25 per phone for residence customers and $30 per phone for business customers. This fee is in addition to the instrument charge for the Design Line phone. In addition to the changes approved December 30, Pacific Telephone will begin charging for reconnecting service after it has been temporarily disconnected for non-payment of bills.

The changes in the way we charge for our services will produce approximately $65 million in additional revenues which will partially offset wage and salary expense. As stated earlier, most of the new charges will affect those getting new service, those making changes in their service, or those who place long distance calls within California. Specific costs of installation and monthly rates which have been revised as a result of our new pricing schedule will be quoted to customers at the time an order for service is placed.

Broad range of topics

'Women in Justice' conference scheduled

Prostitution, violence in the schools and the condition of women's jails are all topics in an upcoming confertwo workshops, one on "Violence in the Schools" and Saturday's schedule include the condition of women in the Justine Schools and the condition of women in the Justine School and the condition of women in the Justine School and the condition of women in the Justine School and the condition of women in the Justine School and the condition of women in the Justine School and the condition of women in the the con ence, "Women in the Justice System.

In a society where "justice" is sometimes considered a euphemism for just the opposite, a panel of distinguished women will discuss the important issues of the day. The Feb. 6-7 series is sponsored by the California Elected Women's Association for Education and Research and the Status of Women Commission of Alameda, Marin and San Francisco counties.

It will be held in the Hyatt House Hotel at Oakland

The pnogram kicks off with a 9 a.m. registration on Friday in the Oakland Room.

At 10 a.m., Dr. Ruth Glick, director of the National Study, Women's Correctional Programs, will speak on "Assessing Women's Jails."

Her remarks will be followed by a panel on "Changes in Women's Facilities.

After a noontime lunch, the topic will change to "Resistance to Women in Policing," discussed by Aileen Hernandez, past president of NOW and president of Hernandez Associates.

At 2 p.m., a panel on "Integrating Law Enforcement" will take place.

Employment Faire set for Wednesday

DUBLIN - An Employment Faire will be held Wednesday, Jan. 14 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Dublin High School library.

Sponsored jointly by Dublin High's counseling department and Parents Club, the Employment Faire is intended to bring together the area's high school students and employers. Over 150 employers have been invited to participate, along with students of the five valley high

Purpose of the Employment Faire is primarily to provide specific information on part-time, summer, and entry level employment opportunities for high school students and high school graduates.

The Faire will include financial aid information and work study programs for the students heading for college.

Woodsman, shred that tree

LIVERMORE - Feed your old Christmas tree to a shredder!

Remove all ornaments, including tinsel, and tote that tree to 401 South K St. between 10 a.m and 4 p.m Saturday. Ecology Center members will grind the tree into mulch, which you may have for your garden if you bring a bag after 1 p.m. The remaining chips will be added to the organgardeners' compost

Another useful end for unwanted trees was dreamed up by the East Bay Regional Park District. In cooperation with the Boy Scouts, the park district recycled more than 300 trees into shelters for quail and pheasant and into trail and picnic area cover.
